

Today's Travel News
Monday, July 21, 2008

Briefly

As more and more travelers are intent on reducing their carbon footprint when flying internationally, passengers are pleased to learn that they can save at least 10% in carbon dioxide emissions by choosing the shortest possible flight route. Together, Helsinki Airport and Finnair, the national carrier of Finland with daily service from New York and seasonal service from Boston and Toronto, offer travelers direct, fast connections between Europe and Asia.