

Party helps the visually impaired

By Jennifer Brett

The Atlanta Journal-Constitution

Monday, December 22, 2008

Hanukkah began at sundown last night, so what better time to tell you about C Lighting's annual holiday party?

The bash, catered by Alon's Bakery & Market, was Dec. 11 and benefited the Center for the Visually Impaired (www.cviga.org). C Lighting owner Yaacov Golan says he is "proud to continue the Israeli tradition of providing support to the visually impaired community, especially during Hanukkah, the season of light."

More than 300 revelers attended, including CVI president Subie Green, board of trustees chairman Frank Virgin, Steven Buchwald, Karin Klein and former Atlanta Mayor Sam Massell.