"Grande Italia" Is Grand Deal

$1,999 Vacation Package Combines Venice, Florence and Rome

Atlanta, August 14, 2008 - Italy continues to be one of the most popular destinations for American travelers; its three major cities - Venice, Florence and Rome - perch high on the 'must-visit' list of many. Often, winter turns out to be an excellent time to visit Italy - museums and restaurants are less crowded, rates drop and temperatures are more moderate. This winter, Austrian Airlines, in concert with Austrian Airlines Vacation Center, operated by IMTC, Inc., features a ten-day vacation package to Italy that combines three consecutive nights each in Venice, Florence and Rome at just $1,999 per person, double occupancy. This Grande Italia vacation package is available for travel between November 1 - December 10, 2008 and January 4 - March 19, 2009, from either New York (JFK) or Washington, DC (IAD). You'll travel in economy class on Austrian Airlines to Venice where you'll stay three nights in Hotel American(*). Then board a first class train from Venice to Florence for the next three nights in Hotel Corona d'Italia, and from there, travel by train to Rome for the final portion of your Grande Italia vacation. In Rome, enjoy three nights hotel accommodation in Hotel Edera or Hotel Nord Nuova Roma, both centrally-located superior tourist class properties, before flying back to the USA. Daily breakfast, hotel service charges and hotel taxes are included, and extension nights and upgrades are available upon request.

"The Grande Italia package is perfect for first-time visitors to Italy who want to sample the country's premier cities. For repeat travelers to this magnificent country, the flexibility of our vacation package as well as the savings this package represents is very attractive," notes Bram Majtli, Austrian Airlines Vacation Center's President. "I dare say that this is a grand deal!"
