Social Resto Cafe Bar

Tucked away on a side street of downtown Atlanta, Social Resto Café Bar expresses the cultures of two brothers raised in Lyon, France by Tunisian parents. The result is a French bistro with North African influenced cuisine in an urban Atlanta setting.

The experience at Social is about the atmosphere and familial approach just as much as it is about the food. The personal touch and attention to service is quickly noted and you're likely to be greeted or served with a French accent from one of the owners. Social feels more like a casual European neighborhood restaurant than a downtown hot spot. Ask to be seated downstairs at one of their communal tables if you have a small group and want a lively experience. Opt for the upstairs area if you want a quieter, more intimate night.

The brothers' Mediterranean upbringing is reflected in the affordable menu of small plates, cheeses, charcuterie and a few select entrees and tajines. They use the North African tajine pot for cooking meats with spices until they become incredibly tender. Social's cuisine has a good balance of the familiar and the adventurous. We tried and liked the Andalusian beef meatballs, stuffed roasted potatoes, roasted vegetable lasagna, and lamb shank tajine. Open for lunch (Mon-Fri) and dinner (Mon-Sat). Social
