Finnair Expands Asian Services

Finnair has announced plans to increase Asian flight frequencies in early 2011. In January, Finnair will boost flights to Seoul (INC) from three to six weekly, while departures to Nagoya (NGO) in Japan will increase from three to five. There will be one additional flight for both Osaka (KIX) and Delhi (DEL), bringing the frequencies to Osaka up to six times a week and making Delhi a daily service. Finnair flies the most direct geographical route between Asia and Europe via Helsinki (HEL), where three runways make for faster takeoffs and landings and also reduce fuel consumption. Within Europe, Finnair will add a daily connection between Helsinki and Gdansk (GDN) on March 27, 2011. Gdansk will be Finnair's third destination in Poland in addition to Krakow (KRK) and Warsaw (WAW).
