

Jaunted

Airline Miles / Frequent Flyer Miles / Finnair / United / Delta / → All Tags

Have Extra Miles? Use Them on Cosmetic Surgery or Other Crazy Rewards

March 9, 2011 at 8:48 AM | by Jennifer Kester | Comments \(0\)

Whenever we rack up airline miles, we put them toward more travel rather than a kitchen mixer. But it looks like airlines are tempting frequent flyers to use their miles on crazy stuff like facelifts.

Yep, those bags under your eyes from frequent air travel can get nip-tucked away with your miles. The Wall Street Journal reported that Finnair will give you a facelift for 4.6 million miles. Or if you are feeling self-conscious about other physical characteristics, you can cash in 3.2 million of its Plus points to get a hair transplantation or breast augmentation.

If you're not quite ready for plastic surgery, not to worry; there are some bizarre frequent-flyer prizes for you, too. United will give you a digital mini grand piano for more than 1 million miles. And Delta offers a diamond necklace for more than 4 million miles.

However, if you are looking to firm up with some cosmetic surgery, hurry and cash in those miles. The WSJ said that Finnair, which has partnered with Nordstrom Hospital, will phase it out from its rewards.

Photo: [Middle East Healthcare News]

Popular Stories

Related Stories

Our Publications:

Jaunted | HotelChatter | VegasChatter

CONDÉ NAST
DIGITAL